

KIDS FIRST! What will we watch today?

The best of DVDs and television shows for the grandchildren

TV SHOWS

CYBERCHASE, the only math series for children on American TV, will be premiering new episodes starting on April 20, featuring NBC-TV meteorologist Janice Huff as part of its seventh-season Weather Watchers initiative that helps kids learn more and get motivated about climate change. The episodes embed math concepts in situations where the CyberSquad measures physical properties, quantifies atmospheric conditions and makes predictions to get out of jams. Janice Huff will be featured on the first two premiere-week episodes, April 20 and 21 (check local listings). In three live-action short-form videos for Weather Watchers, to debut on Cyberchase Online and the PBS KIDS GO! broadband player, Cyberchase goes behind the scenes with meteorologist Janice Huff, the voice of Stormy Gale in the Weather Watchers episodes, and real kids engage in weather-related activities that motivate viewers to "try this at home!"

---